Mayors Vote in Favor of Green Building Practices

The mayors of the cities of Chula Vista, Imperial Beach and National City say they've joined a national coalition of mayors who are trying to make green, healthy schools a national priority.

The 46-member mayoral group known as The Mayors' Alliance for Green Schools says it's participating in discussions to promote the concept of public-private partnerships for funding energy-efficient schools, and to support legislation that encourages sustainable building.

Jim Janney is the mayor of the City of Imperial Beach; Cheryl Cox leads the City of Chula Vista; and Ron Morrison guides the City of National City.
